

Data Information

1. Detailed information of big sequences in Practical Use Case 1

We collected nearly thirty thousand publicly available complete genome sequences of COVID-19 virus from 79 different countries from December 2019 to May 2020 (shown in Table 1), and related flu-causing coronaviruses/viruses, e.g., HCoV-229E (shown in Table 2), HCoV-HKU1 (shown in Table 3), HCoV-NL63 (shown in Table 4), HCoV-OC43 (shown in Table 5), etc. These viruses are big sequences with a length of about 30,000. These sequences are all from NCBI GenBank database. You can search and download them by using their serial number (No.). Some collected sequences are shown in the following tables 1-5 (see following references [1-2] for details).

Table 1 Detailed information of the COVID-19 strains

2. Detailed information of big sequences in Practical Use Case 2

We selected 11 publicly available complete genome sequences (length $\geq 10,000$) obtained through the latest sequencing technology from liver cancer patients. These sequences are all from the NCBI GenBank database, which can be searched and downloaded using their corresponding serial number (No.). The collected 11 sequences are presented in Table 6 below.

Table 6 Detailed information of the liver cancer whole genome sequencing
